Beyond software.

THE BRAND IDEA

"Storemate is building the Sri Lankan seller of tomorrow."

This is not a software company. This is a force in an industry.

A movement that professionalises Sri Lankan e-commerce — one seller at a time.

What changed — and why it matters.

Before

A platform that manages orders and inventory for sellers.

After

A movement that professionalises Sri Lankan e-commerce — one seller at a time.

Impact

Storemate is no longer a vendor inside the industry. It is a stakeholder in its future.

The five new brand dimensions.

01 Community Supporter

Storemate does not just serve sellers. It grows the industry around them — hosting events, publishing insights, advocating for policies that support the Sri Lankan online seller community.

02 Educator

Storemate gives sellers knowledge before it asks for money. The seller who learns through Storemate content will never forget where that knowledge came from. Education creates loyalty no competitor can buy away.

03 Business Uplifter

Organised. Modern. Trustworthy. These three words are exactly what a Sri Lankan seller's customer needs to feel. Every Storemate feature must pass this test: does it make the seller look more professional to their buyer?

04 Order Standard

Every order placed with a Storemate seller is taken so seriously that the buyer never needs to return it. This is a cultural standard the brand instills in every seller — a code of conduct, not a feature.

05 Sri Lankan Pride

Using Storemate makes a Sri Lankan seller feel proud. Not just organised — proud to be part of something that represents Sri Lanka's business community at its best.

Growing the industry.

COMMUNITY SUPPORTER

We grow the industry — not just our customer list.

Most software companies are transactional. Storemate is a stakeholder in the health of Sri Lankan e-commerce as a whole. When the industry grows, Storemate grows.

- Host seller meetups and industry events
- Publish annual Sri Lanka e-commerce insights report
- Partner with chambers of commerce and business associations
- Create platforms where sellers connect and learn from each other
- Advocate for policies that support online sellers nationally

Brand signal: When Storemate speaks about the industry, it speaks as an insider who wants the whole ecosystem to win.

EDUCATOR

We give sellers knowledge before we ask for money.

The seller who learns how to run their business better through Storemate content will never forget where that knowledge came from. Education builds trust before a sale and loyalty after success.

- YouTube series: how to run a professional Sri Lankan e-commerce business
- Practical guides on returns, pricing, inventory management
- Case studies that teach through real seller stories
- Sinhala-language content reaching sellers no competitor serves
- A free resource library — available whether or not they are a paid customer

Brand signal: Storemate gives value before it asks for anything. The customer was already being served as a student.

The education flywheel.

From seller to business.

The three words every Storemate seller must project.

Organised

The buyer feels confident the order will arrive correctly and on time. No confusion. No missed details. A business that has its operations under control.

Feature test: Does this make the seller look more organised to their buyer?

Modern

The buyer sees a real business — not a side hustle on a Facebook page. Professional invoices, branded SMS, clean order confirmation. A business that operates at a Feature test: Does this make the seller look more modern to their buyer?

Trustworthy

The buyer feels safe purchasing again. Their data is protected. Their order is accurate. The seller takes their trust seriously. A business worth returning to.

Feature test: Does this make the seller look more trustworthy to their buyer?

The Order Standard — a code of conduct, not a feature.

THE PROMISE

"Every order placed with a Storemate seller should be taken so seriously that the buyer never needs to return it."

This is not a software promise. It is a cultural standard that Storemate instils in every seller on the platform. When a seller joins Storemate, they are joining a community that takes the buyer's trust seriously. That standard is what separates a Storemate seller from every other online seller in Sri Lanka.

1

Seller Onboarding Standard

Every new seller completes "The Storemate Seller Standard" — a short commitment to order accuracy, packaging quality, and buyer respect. Not optional.

3

Return Rate Recognition

Celebrate sellers with the lowest return rates — not just highest order volumes. Redefines what success looks like on the platform.

2

Storemate Verified Seller Badge

A public trust badge visible on every Storemate seller's storefront. Buyers develop a preference for Storemate sellers because of the standard the platform created.

4

Education on Order Quality

Content on reducing returns, improving packaging, and handling buyer communication. Because fewer returns means better businesses — and a stronger brand standard.

A movement, not just software.

THE PRIDE POSITIONING

Storemate is what Sri Lankan e-commerce looks like when it takes itself seriously.

When a Sri Lankan seller says "I use Storemate" — they say it with the same pride someone feels saying they drive a car built in their country. The software becomes a source of national identity.

What Sri Lankan Pride looks like in practice.

"Proudly Sri Lankan" as a visible brand statement

Not buried in an About page. On the homepage, in the app, in every pitch. The local identity is a competitive advantage — not a limitation.

Celebrating Sri Lankan seller success as national achievement

When a Storemate seller hits 10,000 orders or expands regionally — that is not just a customer milestone. It is a national business story worth telling publicly.

Representing Sri Lankan e-commerce regionally and internationally

APICTA Hong Kong is already happening. Every international recognition positions Sri Lankan sellers — collectively — as a market to be taken seriously.

Making sellers feel they are building something historic

The seller who started on a Facebook page and now runs a professional operation through Storemate is part of Sri Lanka's digital economy story. The brand must reflect that back to them.

A brand narrative that connects individual seller success to national progress

Every seller who grows with Storemate is contributing to a stronger Sri Lankan digital economy. That narrative elevates the seller — and the brand simultaneously.

The comparison that tells the story.
